S3 - Battlefields Trip Meeting

- A meeting will be held this Thursday lunchtime in Mr Lanes room (@13:25) to discuss the trip plans, passports and decide rooming allocations for the Hostel. It is mandatory to attend, otherwise you risk not having a say about your allocated room. Can everyone please attend promptly at 13:25. Bring your lunch!

Free Residential Environmental Science Summer Camp

Currently in S3? Considering studying environmental science, geography or biology?

Would you like the chance to gain hands-on, career-relevant experiences, delivered by University of Glasgow Lecturers and environmental professionals?

The University of Glasgow, in partnership with RES, is offering a free, week-long residential field course for up to 19 students, to be held at the Scottish Centre for Ecology and the Natural Environment on the banks of Loch Lomond.

Here you will have the opportunity to experience a variety of skills useful to your studies and future careers, including species identification and taxonomy, passive surveying methods such as acoustic monitoring, habitat classification, mapping with geographic information systems and even the basics of statistical analysis.

Whether you are considering university or simply exploring careers in the field, we're open to all!

Applications are open now and will close on the 30th March 2026.

3 miles in March

This month I am taking part in a charity event, raising money for Sepsis Trust UK. Every day in March, I need to complete 3 miles! So far it is going ok, but I'd really like your help.

Some lunchtimes or maybe after school, I will be using the track to get my miles in... however 12 laps to do the 3 miles seems ENDLESS! I'm asking for people to join me, walking, running, or even just count the laps. It would really mean a lot 😊

For the rest of March, I will send a weekly update of the days I'll be out.

No special trainers or running gear needed - Just good conversation and company.

Thank you, Mrs Heatlie
